PRACTICAL COURSE, SEAMANSHIP, GIVEN SEASCOUT LEADERS

Motor Craft Takes Group On Board Here for Trip
Up Rancocas

EXCITING ADVENTURE

Visit Wissinoming Yacht Club
—Learn Much About
Seamanship

A practical course in seamanship as applied to the leading of Seascouts was given Seascout leaders of Bucks County Boy Scout Council last evening. The motor sailor of the Delaware and Montgomery Boy Scout Council docked at the old Ferry landing here and took aboard the local council leaders. Regional Seascout Commodore J. Edgar Hires, Philadelphia, greeted the leaders at the wharf, and expressed his pleasure in making available to them the facilities of the D. & M. Council of which he is also commodore. Mr. Hires left the Bristol dock on his motor cruiser "Amittola" taking with him Commodore Thomas B. Stockham, Boy Scout County Commissioner William Burgess, and Ship Committeeman William Hohweller, Morrisville.

During the cruise to the Wissinoming Yacht Club instruction was given by Seascout Director Chester Nelson, and Harbormaster Charles B. Walters of the Delaware and Montgomery Councils. The instruction included boat etiquette, engine bells, billets, watch assignment, log keeping, navigation, channel bouys, range lights, and boat signals.

At Wissinoming, the other members of the Bucks County party left the "Amittola," and boarded the motor sailor. Going up Rancocas Creek it had proved exciting, and it was interesting to see the operation of the different bridges crossing the creek as they opened to permit the boat to pass.

Upon arrival at the base, a complete tour of the administration building, training ship, crew houses, and equipment locker was made under the guidance of Seascout Director Nelson.

Leaving the base at 10:15 proved to be a wet, and exhilarating adventure. The party boarded the Buccoo camp truck, and being with an open body made a damp excursion to Bristol. The pouring downfall did not dampen the spirits of the men, and hot showers with stiff rub downs soon removed any danger from colds.

The training group consisted of: Commodore Thomas B. Stockham, County Scout Commissioner William Burgess, and Scout Executive William F. Livermore. From the Bristol Seascout Ship "Elks" came: Skipper Fred Jewett, Mate Fred Herman, Mate Russell Unruh, Fred Bell, John Ellis, John Gallagher, J. Robert Hendricks, Walter Kornstedt, and Virdin L. Watt. The Morrisville Seascout Ship "Robert Morris" was represented by: Skipper Harper Stockham, Mate Jack Burgess, Mate Robert White, Ship Committeeman William Hohweller, Charles Burgess, Elwood James, C. W. Landis, Carver Tettemer, George Phillips, and J. C. Whalen. "The Rainbow Clipper," Crocydon, had: Seascout committee chairman A. B. Stiles, Skipper Robert Brenner, Jr., Seascout Committeeman William Wankel, Jr., John W. Davis and George H. Musbach.

Morrisville Man Dies of Carbon-Monoxide Gas

MORRISVILLE, June 28.—William R. Pancoast, 202 West Franklin street, was found dead in his garage last night. Apparently death was due to asphyxiation by carbon monoxide gas. Pancoast had been repairing his automobile and was to have met his wife in Trenton.

The victim's wife went to Trenton yesterday with the understanding that Pancoast would meet her and take her back home. When he did not arrive at the appointed hour, Mrs. Pancoast boarded a trolley car, and on arrival home heard the engine of the automobile running in the garage. Throwing open the doors, which evidently had blown shut, she found Pancoast lying alongside the car.

Mrs. Pancoast summoned Manohar R. Reiter, supervising principal of the Morrisville schools, who lives a few doors away, who notified Lieutenant W. H. Kelly at the Trenton police headquarters.

Reserve Officer Saunders and Chauffeur Frank Glennon were sent to the scene with an ambulance and inhalator and they worked over the victim for an hour, aided by Chief of Police Cooper, of Morrisville, and Dr. George A. Enlon, of Morrisville, who also was summoned. Dr. Enlon then pronounced Pancoast dead. Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young, of Bristol, viewed the body and issued a burial permit.

Pancoast, who was 45 years old, is survived by his widow and two children. He formerly drove a truck for the Wirtschatter company and recently had been employed at a sanatorium on Nottingham Way.

Chief of Police Linford J. Jones and family left this morning to motor to Summit Hill for a brief vacation visit.

Generosity of Bristol Folks Shown in Bouquets

Thursday at the "Flowers for the Flowerless" booth, Frankford, is one of the biggest days, owing to the generosity of Travel Club members and their friends in donations of bouquets.

This Thursday Mrs. Charles Peet and Mrs. J. Byron Johnson will take a load of flowers to the Pratt street booth. They will remain at the flower booth until 12 o'clock noon, where they will receive bouquets sent by other organizations, and will also distribute flowers among the beneficiaries. At least six buckets will be taken to the Wissinoming Home, six to the Lutheran Home, and several bouquets to shut-ins. These are taken by a member of the Bible Readers' Society.

Those having flowers to donate are asked to communicate with either Mrs. Peet or Mrs. Johnson.

TWENTY-FIVE DOGS BURNED IN BLAZE

Bolt of Lightning Hits Structure and Starts Fire

TOTAL LOSS IS $23,000

PLUMSTEADVILLE, June 28.—Lives of at least 75 dogs and four large bears were threatened between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday evening, when the large stone barn on the John J. Belli dog farm was destroyed by fire caused by a bolt of lightning.

Shortly after 6 o'clock a fire struck the barn and the flames spread with such rapidity that it was with great danger that Mr. Belli removed to a place of safety the 75 dogs and the four bears, the latter housed in a cage removed a short distance from the barn.

The dogs, however, becoming panicky, after having been removed from the barn, again ran into the flaming structure and as a result at least 25 of them perished. A number of them, it was reported this morning, are still at liberty, but reports stated that about 40 of them have been accounted for.

At the risk of his life Mr. Belli, the proprietor of the largest dog farm in this part of the State, went into the flaming structure for the purpose of saving the dogs and the last time he entered the barn it was necessary for the firemen to play a stream of water on him. In spite of this, it was said this morning, Mr. Belli suffered slight burns of the back and this morning is confined to his bed at a result of shock.

The four bears were housed in a cage which was separated from the main building by a narrow driveway. Firemen from Plumsteadville, Dublin, and Doylestown, taking their water from the Cabin Run, a small stream to the southwest of the barn, succeeded in saving a corn crib, the bear cage, kennels and an eating stand.

In the barn at the time of the fire were stored a large number of antiques which had been valued at approximately $5000. These were all destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $23,000. The barn, valued at $8500, was insured, but there was no insurance on the dogs and the antiques.

The farm, situated on the Lackawanna Trail a short distance north of this village, until about six years ago was owned by Allen M. Rush. After Mr. Belli purchased it he converted it into one of the show places along the highway. In order to provide room for his dogs he remodeled the interior of the barn into compartments, in which many of the dogs were when the barn was struck Sunday evening.

NEWSPAPER "ADS" BUILD UP PROFITS DURING DEPRESSION

Consistent newspaper advertising has resulted in maintaining or increasing the earnings of many companies despite the depression, according to a survey made by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The study shows that several concerns have reached new highs in the depression through the ability to concentrate on profitable markets and realize immediate sales through newspaper advertising.

Comparing twenty-five companies that maintained or increased their advertising in newspapers in 1931 with twenty-five companies in corresponding trade groups that decreased newspaper advertising, it is found by the bureau that the 1931 net earnings of the former group were only seven per cent.

The survey shows that one automobile concern increased its newspaper budget 33 per cent in 1931 and that its net earnings went up 40 per cent. It is said that another manufacturer in the highly competitive electric refrigerator field spent $200,000 in buying newspaper space last year and that his dollar sales were 450 per cent of those in 1930. Of the four leading tobacco manufacturers who increased their newspaper advertising in 1931 three are said to have shown an increase in earnings and one only a slight decline from the high net of the preceding year. The aggregate expenditures of these four companies in newspaper advertising increased 30 per cent, from $20,000,000 in 1930, to $26,000,000 in 1931 while aggregate earnings mounted from $105,200,000 to $111,300,000.

There has been a decided trend to newspapers on the part of advertisers who recently favored other mediums.

Robert Neil, Jefferson avenue, appeared against Indelicato and accused him of slashing his right arm, a number of times.

It appears there was a drunken fight and during the fracas Indelicato drew a knife and drew it across Neil's arm, to such an extent that blood flowed freely.

BURLINGTON JOINS BRISTOL IN APPEAL

Mayor Holmes Solicits Support of Senator and Congressman

LOCAL BURGESS ACTIVE

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson has been active in the endeavor to bring to Bristol a contract for the building of bombing airplanes should the government decide to award a contract for the construction of such planes.

He solicited the support of Harold V. Holmes, mayor of Burlington, N. J., who in turn enlisted the support of Senator Hamilton F. Kean and Congressman Isaac Bacharach.

A number of Burlington residents were also employed at the Keystone plant.

Mayor Holmes has written to Burgess Anderson forwarding copies of letters he received from both Senator Kean and Congressman Bacharach.

These letters follow:

Honorable Harold V. Holmes,
Burlington, N. J.
Dear Mayor Holmes:

In reply to your letter of June 20th, I consulted with the office of the Chief of Air Corps of the War Department about the possibility of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation of Bristol, Pa., receiving a portion of the proposed contract for bombing planes.

Up to the present time there has been no appropriation to take care of this, but I am informed that every consideration will be given the Keystone Aircraft Corporation if the type plane they manufacture is of the same type that the War Department intends to construct. I understand that at this time the type of plane has not been determined upon, but the Department knows of the Keystone Company, and as I said, that the Company will be given every consideration.

Assuring you it is a pleasure to be of this service to you, I am

Yours very truly,
(signed) HAMILTON F. KEAN.

House of Representatives
Isaac Bacharach
2nd Dist., N. J.
Washington, D. C.,
June 21, 1932.

My dear Major:

I have your letter of the 20th inst. with reference to contract for bombing planes in which the Keystone Aircraft Corporation is interested. Will be glad to do anything I can to help; however, these contracts are rather complicated in character with many different items, tests and other requirements entering into the matter of award, all of which the Keystone Aircraft people will be familiar with and if they keep us advised as to the progress of the contracts we will be glad to give any assistance we can in helping them to get the order.

With best wishes and personal regards, I remain

Yours very truly,
(signed) ISAAC BACHARACH.
Hon. Harold V. Holmes,
Burlington, N. J.

Injured Girl's Condition Still Considered Critical

The condition of Miss Frances Kalnaitis, 15, Philadelphia, is still considered critical at St. Luke's Hospital, Philadelphia. The girl was mysteriously injured at Parkland early Saturday morning.

One of the three persons arrested, Alexander Hackett, in connection with the affair, has been charged with assault and battery and held in $2,000 bail. Joseph Brown, 28, and Miss Viola Kachinskas, 17, Philadelphia, were each held in $1,000 as material witnesses.

Miss Kalnaitis was found injured along the Lincoln Highway by Patrolman MacAfee and nearby was the car of Hackett and his companions. They were told to take the injured girl to a Trenton hospital. They drove to Trenton and then down the New Jersey side to Palmyra and thence into Philadelphia to St. Luke's Hospital.

All three have been closely questioned both by MacAfee and Bucks County Detective Russo in an endeavor to solve the manner in which the girl was injured. Up to this time the officers have been unsuccessful.

DEMOCRATS TO OPEN BATTLE

Chicago, Ill., June 28.—The fighting in the Democratic National Convention—and there is plenty of it—moved out from behind closed doors today and into the open.

When the delegates retired to the stadium today it was not to hear a lot of oratory but to start a series of battles preliminary to the main bout for the presidential nomination.

The opposition to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, most of which was of the "last ditch" variety, appeared more confident than ever they had him stopped. There appeared to be some ground for this confidence, with signs of cracking in a few delegations that had been counted solidly for Roosevelt. Mississippi was one. Iowa also showed signs of cracking. Although Governor Roosevelt still has more votes in the convention than any other, he is still the favorite, but he does not have the two-thirds majority of the convention at this time.

INDIANA—Percy Miller, 17, who was graduated from the Armagh High School, was not tardy or late during his twelve years in elementary and high schools. During his high school career he was a member of the baseball and basketball squads.

LANCASTER.—Unable to close his mouth as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, Sands Smith, Parkersburg, has filed a damage suit for $10,200 here against Mrs. Marzella Reynolds, Lancaster.

THRILL OF PERFECTION

The man who has never learned to strive—and to reach—beyond his grasp, has not known one of the greatest secrets of happy achievement.

We in this world shall never understand the full meaning of perfection. But we may all set our hands and brains and hearts to its attainment.

It was Browning who said that our reach should exceed our grasp—or else what was Heaven for.

How we are thrilled at the first sensations of realization that we are on the right track and that our study and desire for mastery is beginning to bear fruit.

The artist who sees his figures and landscapes taking real form is encouraged to go deeper into his art and to study more.

If none of us could feel progress as it comes, there would be little incentive to go ahead.

It's because we get the flashes of perfection as we work for it, that we assure ourselves some day we will excel.

The child has to be taught its first lesson in conduct and in the acquiring of knowledge.

No one will ever reach perfection—but if we didn't have it to aim toward, we would never accomplish anything.

A noted writer said the other day that he intended revising a book which he had written 30 years ago, to perfect it, from his viewpoint, so that it might stand as an expression of the best toward which he had striven as a writer during his lifetime.

To set our eyes on the goal, and work to attain it, keeps alive the two most powerful factors in success—incentive and interest.

TRADE CONFERENCE

World trade is in dire need of a stimulant but it is doubtful if the proposed international conference to talk up trade would have any effect on its drooping vitality. In fact, it is doubtful if world business would respond immediately to any stimulant.

Could sufficient international accord be procured along distinctly beneficial lines to do much toward getting floundering business on an even keel again? Virtually all countries engaging in world trade have appeared to act on the conviction that that nation profits most which best spikes the business guns of its competitor nations.

An international conference on trade would be profitable to the world in general if it brought economists, industrial leaders and bankers together for a sober and frank discussion of what and where the snags in the stream of world trade are, and if it were possible to keep that discussion international, rather than selfishly national, in its aims.

What world trade needs today is a "one for all and all for one" pact. When there was enough trade for all, cut-throat and high-pressure methods of competition were successful, if not ethical, but now that there is not enough business for one nobody gains through ill-conceived trade barriers and retaliatory measures.

There is a machine which stamps out a complete automobile body in one operation and another will push it all in again at any intersection.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

After a week or two at the Ritz they moved to a large apartment in the Boulevard Housman, out near "The Arch of Triumph." Here Lily Lou had a small room of her own, and the use of the piano when Nahlman was not using it, which was not often.

It was a place of gilt, spindle legged furniture, pale murals, immense cut-glass chandeliers, and many servants. Lily Lou never got them quite straight, and Nahlman didn't even try to. She had rented them with the apartment. What little managing there was was done by the rather silent Susanne. Silent with Lily Lou and Nahlman, loquacious with the servants. Lily Lou envied her her gift of languages.

"All Swiss speak many languages," Susanne said. Lily Lou wished she had been born in Switzerland, instead of Woodlake. She knew now that Gwin had been right, her French was terrible. She couldn't understand the French, and the French could not understand her. Nahlman, born in Philadelphia, educated in the public schools there some thirty-five years before, spoke French like a native.

There were times when Lily Lou thought wistfully of Gwin and Maxine, and even Mrs. Manchester and Wanda Pillsbury and the artists. None had bothered to write. Probably they cared not a thing about her, but now that they were distant they seemed nearer to her than Nahlman would ever bother to be.

She wouldn't let herself think of Woodlake, and the folks, and the old dog, Shep.

Whenever she did she cried, and it upset Nahlman to see her red-eyed and depressed. If there was to be any temperament, any display of feeling, it was to be done by Nahlman herself. So Lily Lou, mindful of her own good, kept her thoughts from home as much as she could, and put her whole heart into the tasks that Nahlman assigned her.

Nahlman was an inspired teacher. But she was an indifferent and irregular one. Sometimes there was a two hour lesson every day for two days. Then not another for a week.

Somewhat the days slipped by. Paris wakes early, and so did Lily Lou. There would be the rattle of the milk wagons and garbage carts over the cobbles, the shrill cries of the drivers. Bang, crash, bang, and high pitched exchange of French greetings and curses. Then the screech of the iron shutters being raised across the way. The beginning of traffic. The acid smell of burnt coffee from the little grocery on the corner. Presently Leontine would come with coffee and a hard little roll on a tray.

Practicing in half hour stretches. Reading. Studying. Bedtime again. The days slipped by.

She even got through Christmas, with Christmas letters from home, and a box of homemade fruit cake from her mother. She cried over that.

She learned to distinguish the servants. Leontine was the tall one with the fancy cap with the streamers. She brought the coffee every morning. Albert was the butler. The gaunt, stooped man with the walrus whiskers was Le Chef. If he had another name it was never spoken. The servants spoke of him reverently—Le Chef. Or, Monsieur le Chef.

"I ought to go sightseeing. I certainly ought to see Paris," Lily Lou told herself, but she had no desire to go anywhere. She went on a few sightseeing tours, but did not enjoy them. The tourists frightened her. She preferred to go alone to the Louvre. She was beginning to tire quickly now. She'd sit on the stone benches, sometimes staring at a painting, sometimes looking down at her own tired feet. Attendants came to know her, to speculate about her—the sad, pretty young American—

Something must have happened to Nahlman's opera plans. She said nothing about them. Came in one day with a tale of having signed up for concerts in Vienna.

Lily Lou worked with her. Played accompaniments. Nahlman worked herself into a frenzy.... this wasn't right... she couldn't get that note... cursed crazy program....

But Lily Lou almost despaired, just listening to her. How would she ever grasp the technique that was Nahlman's? How would she ever rise to her heights? And how would she ever perfect her languages, to be able to sing in French, in Italian, in German, as Nahlman did....

They whisked off to Vienna on a blustering March day when the sun shone palely, and the dirty winter's snow melted slowly on the shady sides of streets. Vienna was thrilling from the first. There was the fun of sitting in a box at Nahlman's first concert, wearing a string of Nahlman's pearls and a Paris gown of dead white lace, a delayed Christmas present, and one of Nahlman's emerald wrens, shawl-like, about her shoulders. There was a supper at the apartment afterward, and a gay company of singers and artists who flattered her when she sang for them.

The next day Nahlman went off to Berlin, for what she said was to be a brief visit with friends. Susanne went with her. Lily Lou began to worry. She felt that her time was near, regretted that she had not asked Madame Nahlman about doctors, hospitals.... Suppose that when they were all away.... and she, not knowing any German....

"It won't happen—not for weeks yet, I'm just being morbid. How Bess would laugh at me for being scared!" she thought, waking terrified and pain racked one windy March night.

She turned on all the lights for comfort. She walked out to the hall to look at the telephone. It was right there. She could call anyone. Except that nobody would understand her.

She waited another hour. Then, sobbing, and half out of her mind with fear, she rang the bell for the servants.

Rang and rang, and rang.... She could hear the bell echoing through the house.

Presently the door opened. She saw a little man in a nightshirt and peaked cap, and behind him a tight little group of huddled, frightened women.

"Oh, help me! Help me!" she cried, not caring, not knowing that they knew no English.

The frightened circle closed around her. The man with the nightshirt and tattered cap bent over her.

Kennett Square Man Takes Miss M. Elizabeth Kelly As Bride

YARDLEY, June 28.—The St. Ignatius Church was the scene of a wedding Saturday at 10 a. m., when Miss M. Elizabeth Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, became the bride of Charles J. Fahey, son of James and the late Katherine Keller, Kennett Square. Rev. E. A. Stapleton officiated at a nuptial mass.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in white satin made princess style with lace jacket. Her veil was of tulle fashioned in Russian coronet style, and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss A. Marie Kelly, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a frock of yellow Mousseline de soie with straw hat to correspond. Her flowers were yellow roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Agnes Kelly, another sister; Mrs. William Kelly, Jr., a sister-in-law, and Misses Margaret and Katherine Fahey, sisters of the groom. They were attired in frocks of pastel shades of net with taffeta jackets, and wore straw hats to match their gowns. They carried bouquets of roses of corresponding shades. James Fahey was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Harold Craven, William Kelly, Jr., brother of the bride, James Curtin and Raymond Moybain.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and later Mr. Fahey and his bride left for a wedding trip.

PARISIAN BEAUTIES FAVOR THE LITTLE AMERICAN GLOB HAT

By Alice Langelier
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS — (I.N.S.) — Simple sailor shapes are the snappiest ones seen on fair heads these early summer days and the most popular of them all is the little American glob hat which turns daintily back to reveal one's beauty as well as blemishes.

A combination of the American sailor and the popular Breton shape comes in a crude green felt which is a great favorite. Rust shades and all tints of blue are also very much worn. Crowns are deeper now to allow for the new tilt over the right eye. Many are cut away on the side and thus the little tuile veil is necessary, generally reaching to about halfway down the nose. It gives a mysterious and wistful look to the most ordinary eyes.

Never has there been a season when women were so favored by fashion as far as hats are concerned. There is no need to say one cannot find a bonnet to suit, for there are so many different forms to choose from. But whatever orders Dame Fashion may issue, one is certain to find large and drooping brims at the big June races and other smart summer gatherings.

Enormous brims drooping with muslin flowers are being prepared for smart garden parties. Marie Alphonse is showing a lovely big hat in white bakon, the crown forming pleats and trimmed with ribbons, one with white spots on green and the other with green ones on white.

Embroidered linen bands in different colors make cool-looking summer trim of straw sailors, while bands of tiny feathers laid closely on top of each other are about the only way in which feathers are now being used. The smartest hats perhaps are trimmed with a few rows of fine stitching or a simple band around the crown.

TERTSHON'S SINGLE IS DECIDING BLOW

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
CRESCENTS vs. A. O. H.
(St. Ann's Field)Result of Last Night
INDEPENDENTS, 6; CRESCENTS, 4

(By T. M. Juno)

"Chet" Tershon's single with two men on base was the deciding blow of the Crescents-Independents game last night on St. Ann's field as the Independents noosed out the former by the score of 6-4. It was the third straight defeat for Harry Vandegrift's boys and put them in the cellar of the Twilight League. The victory brought an end to the three game losing streak of the Independents.

Two runs in the sixth scored the win for the "Indies," and two men were out at the time. To begin the inning both Jas. Tulio and Calla were easy put-outs. Breslin could not find the plate and walked R. Tosti who immediately stole second. Antonelli waited and got four wide ones and took first. Tosti and Antonelli then worked the double-steal, Tosti going to third and Antonelli to second. Tershon, batting against Breslin for the first time during the game, lifted a liner to left field for a single that scored both Tosti and Antonelli. E. Tosti fled out to Brooks.

"Freddie" Lasprella received credit for the victory after relieving Romeo in the third inning. In the four frames he pitched, Lasprella allowed only two hits and one run. The tally came as the result of an error. Romeo hurled the first two innings and was found for three runs and two hits. Two of the four hits credited to the Crescents went to the credit of Brooks, the second-sacker.

"Camel" Breslin was on the mound for the losers and his wildness aided in his defeat. He passed five batters and each batter walked later scored, so five of the winners' six runs came as the result of his generosity. Breslin helped his team in the scoring with a home run drive to left field in the second inning. No one was on base when the circuit clout was made.

Four of the ten blows made during the game were for extra bases, there being a triple, two doubles, besides the home run.

DECIDING GAME
BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

(By T. M. Juno)

Tonight on the Emille diamond, the deciding game of the first half of the Lower Bucks County League will be played. Hulmeville, with twelve victories and two defeats, will meet the second place Bristol Odd Fellows, with eleven victories and three defeats. Hulmeville must win tonight to be crowned the first half champions. A win for the Odd Fellows means that another game must be played between the clubs to decide the first half.

Either Howard Black or Joe Kohler will do the twirling for the Hulmeville nine with Afterbach behind the plate. For the Odd Fellows, Ashby or Watson will do the hurling. A close game is anticipated as all four hurlers are in fine shape after a week's lay-off because of the postponing of games.

The fray is scheduled to begin at 6.45 p. m., sharp.

Eastern Stars In I. C. 4-A Meet

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE Eastern athletic contingent, in California for the Intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field championships which start next Friday at Berkeley, has not made a forlorn trip across the country despite the general feeling that most of the honors of the meet will go to Native Sons.

Of course they have no speedsters capable of matching the incomparable Coast racers, Wyckoff, Kiesel and Eastman, but they have three distance men who seem just as certain of victory in their respective specialties. In the mile Frank Nordell, N. Y. U. ace, and "Pen" Hallowell, of Harvard, seem to have that distance sewed up between them. And in the two-mile Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, seems certain of again winning that championship.

McCluskey and Hallowell are among ten of last year's I. C. 4-A winners who will try to repeat. While McCluskey has been devoting much of his recent efforts to the mile he is still rated as America's best at the two-mile distance. In the recent dual meet between Fordham and City College in New York, "Shuffling Joe" performed the remarkable feat of winning three races, at different distances, in one hour's time. He ran the two miles in 10:09.8, one mile in 4:24.6, and a half-mile in 2 minutes flat, unusual speed for a distance runner.

Hallowell, who won the intercollegiate mile championship at Philadelphia, has to his credit the fastest intercollegiate mile ever run—4 minutes and 12.8 seconds, which shattered the mark set by the immortal John Paul Jones back in 1913. It is possible that the Harvard star may also compete in the half-mile against Ben Eastman although he has never done better than 1:52 3-5.

Not since the Pacific Coast teams have been competing in the I. C. 4-A meets, a little more than a decade, has a California won a mile or two-mile championship, but Southern California and Stanford between them have taken team championship the last seven years in a row. And this will probably be the eighth, for Californians are favored in ten of the fifteen events.

However the Eastern team is not without talent in these events and with the added victory incentive of a possible place on the American Olympic team there may be a few surprises.
